SHOCK AND AWWE!

3600 METRES

Sheer insanity!

Extreme mountain skiers take on world's steepest peaks

The steepest black run in a ski resort rates about 30 degrees to the horizontal. Andreas Fransson (main pic) is seen here steadily slalom skiing down the north face of the 3607m Pain du Sucre, Chamonix, France, where the descent can hit 60 degrees, or twice that. It wasn't skied until 1990. Fransson, who died in an avalanche in South America last September, chose incredibly steep, often virgin runs to celebrate life. Snapper Tero Repo also captured Victor de la Rue's hair-melting drop (insert) in Alaska.

Paragliders

flight across
Colombia

European aerial athletes Tom de Dorlodot and Horacio Llorens plotted a trip from Cali to the world's cocaine capital, Medellin, by air, pulling it off in a six-day, 400km trek. Their route followed the path of the Cauca River, and they managed to fly all but 48km. "Drug lords don't like professional photographers," noted Dorlodot. Don't think there are too many at this altitude, Tom.

The background of the entire page is a long-exposure photograph of a city at night. The city lights are blurred into long, horizontal streaks of yellow, orange, and white, creating a sense of motion and light trails. The sky is dark with some wispy clouds. The overall tone is dramatic and artistic.

Fancy a career change? Body painting offers a hands-on approach. US artist Natalie Fletcher is finding 100 volunteers to pose so she can blend their bodies (in undies, sadly) into the landscape to celebrate body self-love. Each takes up to three hours. This is in the Badlands region of Oregon. "I've been painting my ass off," she says. Theirs, too!

Raise a glass to Oz's hottest barmaid, the fantastic
EMILY CHAVE

"I WON'T SERVE CUSTOMERS UNLESS THEY SAY PLEASE"

If you'd like to have a cold beer poured for you by the utterly sensational Emily Chave, there are two things you should remember: she works in the lounge bar at Sydney's Clovelly Hotel; and for God's sake, mind your manners, because if you don't, you're not getting a damn thing...

Emily, it's been more than six months since you were last in ZOO. What's been happening?

I've just been working away! I do lots of promo work and modelling, and I'm still bartending at night.

Which of those do you like the best?

Definitely the promo work [laughs].

Is that because there are fewer drunk people when you're out doing shows?

No, I don't serve drunk people! RSA, remember?

Oh yeah... bar staff have to have a Responsible Service of Alcohol certificate. We should know that. It's the leading reason we get kicked out of pubs. Tell us more about your promo gigs...

I do a lot of car shows — that's my main one — and a lot of shoots.

And if anyone who's reading this wants to know which show you'll be at next, they should...

Check my Facebook or my Instagram. I put up posts saying where I'll be appearing.

Sweet. Can you describe your favourite type of customer at the pub for us? Is it the crusty old dudes who sit on a beer for four hours, by any chance?

[Laughs] We don't get many crusty old dudes where I work! I like polite people, the ones who say please and thank you. If they do that with a smile, I'll be happy. We do get some rude people, though.

How do you deal with them?

ZOO

PHOTOGRAPHY: YANNI ASPRAKIS/BAUER MEDIA SYNDICATION; HAIR: MAKE-UP: STYLING: DANA CASE

I won't serve them unless they say please! I just look at them for a while, then say, "Do you want to say please?" and they always do. It's not that hard!

A lot of first-grade footballers have a rep for being rude in pubs, and a lot of them like drinking near the beach in Sydney. Have you ever struck footy players behaving badly at your pub?

No, I'm pretty oblivious to all that — I just get into work mode. I wouldn't have a clue about footy players.

We'll take a wild guess and say you don't want to do bar work forever. What's your dream job?

I want to travel the world, go to America, and just do a lot of photo shoots and magazine work — that's my favourite. Eventually I want to open my own swimwear and lingerie line.

Have you been to the States before?

Where's the first place you'd like to go?

I haven't been and I'm not sure where I'd like to start.

A lot of people rate Las Vegas because it's a great town for getting off chops.

[Laughs] No, not Vegas — I'm not much of a party person. Maybe New York. I haven't thought about the first city I'll visit, but I know that's the next country I want to go to.

We can highly recommend the town of Boring, Oregon. Tell us a bit more about your swimwear and lingerie. What kind of outfits do you want to make? Bikinis that are so small they look like bits of dental floss?

[Laughs] Not that, no

“I LIKE A SKIMPIER
CUT TO MY LINGERIE. IT’S
WHAT I FEEL SEXY IN”

EMILY CHAVE

— but there will be all kinds of stuff.

What do you think makes for a good piece of lingerie? Most guys would say something that's easy to take off...

[Laughs] I think something a girl would feel sexy in. I always like a bit of a skimpier cut to my lingerie; that's what I feel sexy in, and it's what guys like, too.

Bloody oath it is.

Do you have a name for your swimwear/lingerie label?

No.

Are you open to suggestions from the ZOO staff?

Sure, why not?

There are a lot of reasons... like the fact our first idea is calling it Emily Chave's Microscopic Sex Wear.

ASH + DRAG QUEEN CELEBS + ODE TO BACON

Ten holidays that can KILL YOU

They're deadlier than cancer... but they're still better than being at work

WALKWAY OF DEATH

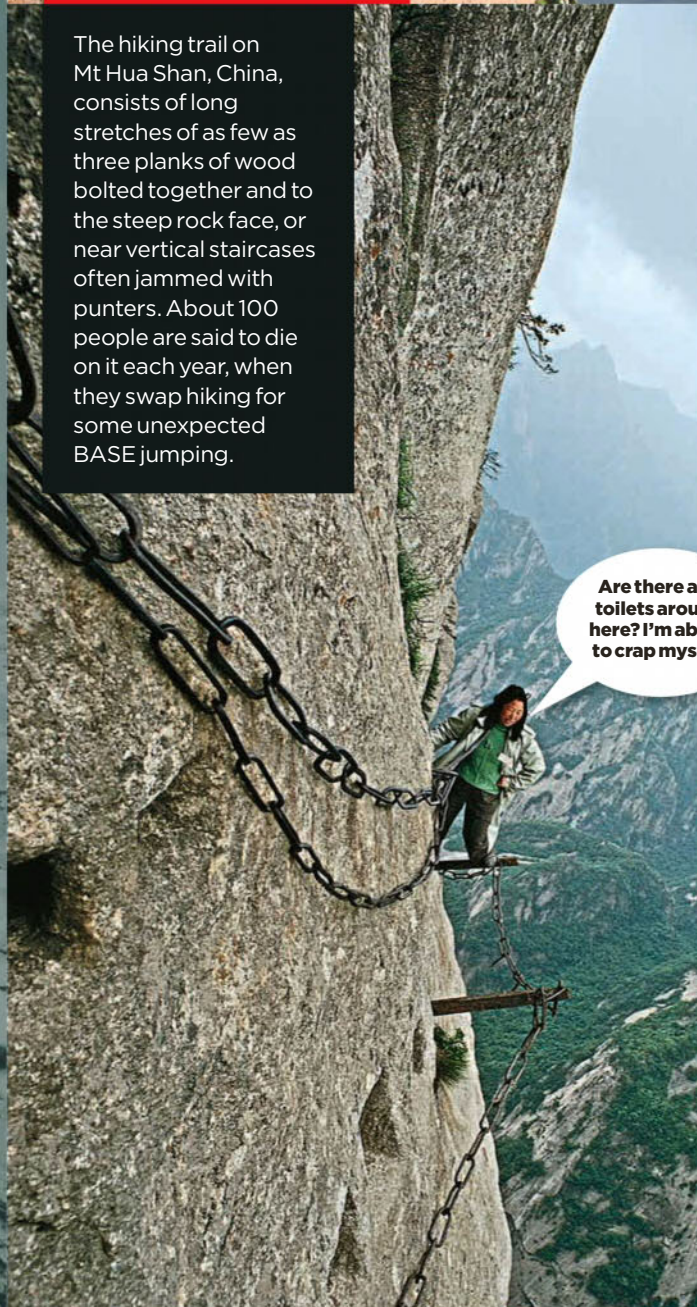

Five people died on the 7km stretch of the El Caminito del Rey wooden walkway, which clings to the Gaitanes gorge in Spain. Huge gaps from missing slats and loose handrails led to it being dubbed the most dangerous path in the world and officially closed. Trespassers continued to brave the deathtrap, 100m above a surging river, until authorities spent millions to make it safe. Well, safer.

EXTREME PLANKING!

THE TORTURE TRAIL

The hiking trail on Mt Hua Shan, China, consists of long stretches of as few as three planks of wood bolted together and to the steep rock face, or near vertical staircases often jammed with punters. About 100 people are said to die on it each year, when they swap hiking for some unexpected BASE jumping.

Are there any toilets around here? I'm about to crap myself!

WORLD'S DEADLIEST SKI RESORT ON ISRAEL-SYRIA BORDER

Skiing's always dangerous, but doing it at this Israeli ski resort is particularly so. Mt Hermon lies on the Syrian border in disputed territory patrolled by soldiers. Israel's neighbour is undergoing a shattering civil war, with large parts occupied by the apocalyptic ISIS cult.

BUNGEE-JUMP A VOLCANO

If hitting the caravan park again seems a bit boring, you can go bungee-jumping from a helicopter inside an active volcano in Pucón, Chile. Of course, if something goes wrong you'll probably end up neck-deep in lava, like a defeated James Bond villain. The tour price includes a T-shirt, though, so it's not all bad.

We're here for the Slipknot concert

THE ISLAND WHERE GAS MASKS ARE COMPULSORY

No, not Curry Island, but Miyakejima, one of Japan's Izu Islands — it lies on top of a volcano and poisonous fumes leak through fissures in the ground. Gas masks are mandatory for residents and visitors, who were all evacuated in 2000 after the volcano erupted, following 17,500 earthquakes in a month. They returned in 2005.

300 DEATHS EVERY YEAR!

MOUNTAIN-BIKE DOWN DEATH ROAD, BOLIVIA

The 3600m descent begins among the mountains, spends a few hours winding along a narrow track with 1km drops, and ends in the Amazonian jungle. All up, it's 64km of road, more than 90 per cent of it heading down. Many cars use a bypass, but there are still 300 fatalities recorded per year.

TOUR THE WRECKED NUCLEAR REACTOR AT CHERNOBYL!

The nuclear disaster at Chernobyl in 1986 killed dozens of people within weeks and smashed radioactive dust over large parts of Europe. Background radiation outside the exclusion zone where the reactor's still being made safe is 20-30 times the standard level — and tourists can book trips from several operators to find out for themselves. Government-issued insurance is compulsory.

WORLD'S MOST DEADLY CITY OUTSIDE A WAR ZONE

With 19 homicides recorded per day — at a rate of 169 deaths per 100,000 people, 153 times that of Australia's — San Pedro Sula in Honduras has been the murder capital of the world since 2011. More than 97 per cent are unsolved in a country where people can legally own five firearms each and through which more than 90 per cent of the US's cocaine is trafficked.

SNAKE ISLAND, BRAZIL

There are one-to-five golden lancehead pit vipers per square metre on Ilha da Queimada Grande, a Brazilian island. The snake has venom so powerful it melts flesh and is responsible for 90 per cent of the country's snake-related fatalities. Only a few scientists are allowed on the territory, which has the boring but true nickname of Snake Island.

Wakey, wakey,

GO TORNADO CHASING IN TORNADO ALLEY, USA

Most people see a tornado and get the fkity fk out of there. But adrenaline junkies looking for a kick can book storm-chasing tours in America's Tornado Alley — that strip of the country where tornadoes regularly reduce towns to smithereens. Get up close to 350kmh of whirling devastation and pray your getaway car starts!

$9.5 million SUPER

Prang smashes classic rides that are worth almost as much as a one-bedder in Sydney

 If you heard a loud groan of dismay on March 21, it came from the thousands of petrolheads who witnessed one of the most expensive car crashes in history at the Goodwood Festival of Speed in the UK.

A $7.6 million Mercedes-Benz SLS Porter Special slammed into the back of a $1.9 million Lister Jaguar, leaving both of them needing more panel-beating than Sam Newman's head.

The Merc will take three months to repair and the engine has to be replaced; the Jaguar is currently on life support in hospital.

Both cars are as rare as rocking-horse shit, and the prang left the crowd at the annual car show devastated. The owners of the rides had their belts and shoelaces taken off them after the accident and are now on suicide watch.

The Merc was driven by former F1 racer Jochen Mass, so it's no wonder that the billionaire owner of the ride, Dr Klaus Lehr, put the blame on Tony Wood, the guy behind the wheel of the Jag: "In the last moment he decided to go to the pit lane and he just crossed in front of Jochen Mass and he just used the brakes, and as you can see from the pictures he crashed into the car."

Lehr said, "I've not spoken to Tony Wood. It was not a race, it was training. Maybe he is a too ambitious driver."

Whoever was at fault, one thing's for sure: somewhere in England an auto repair shop owner is about to become richer than God.

CAR CRASH!

BUT WAIT, THERE'S MORE...

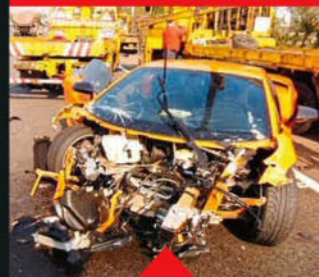

INSURANCE FIDDLE

Andy Lee House said he'd put his Bugatti Veyron into a Texas lake in 2009 to avoid hitting a pelican, but later admitted the smash was a $2.6m scam.

HORSEPLAY

Three of eight Ferraris in this 2014 Japan crash, repair bill $2.4m, are shown — also involved were three Mercs and a Lambo. That's some traffic.

HAD A LEND

Hu Xiao borrowed a mate's LP750-4 Lambo for a "quiet drive", but instead took it racing with mates on a Taiwan freeway, smashing it up.

BEAN TOO LONG

This McLaren, belonging to British comic Rowan Atkinson, spent more than a year being repaired after this 2011 crash, costing Atko more than $2m.

CRAIG LOWNDES

The Mr Nice Guy of V8 Supercars gives a nod to Dame Edna Everage with a pink bouffant hairdo that's so big you could hide Mount Panorama in it. You'll never get your helmet on over that, Craig!

PETE EVANS

LUKE STEELE

We have an apology to make. We lost our shot of the Empire of the Sun singer in drag down the back of the couch and had to run the first replacement we could find. Sorry about that.

Eight reasons BACON is mankind's GREATEST INVENTION

Vegetarians, prepare to fall to the dark side...

GONE BELLY

THE ONLY WAY TO BE BURIED

From US firm JD's — motto "everything should taste like bacon" — comes a bacon-themed casket for the person who loved their dead pig to death. For a cut-price US$1999, the fan of smoked pork can be sent to heaven on an adjustable bed and mattress inside 18-gauge steel. There's also a bacon-scented air-freshener that acts as an afterlife aerosol.

SWEET BACONY DREAMS

Bongs? Whisky? Bongs and whisky? No, what you need for a restful night's kip is bacon-scented pillowcases. Old women are fond of a cloud of lavender, but you respond to a cloud of bacon. They're sure to be a hit with any random roots you score. She's guaranteed to come back for more due to all the subliminal "hot porking" messages she'll get while asleep.

THE ALL-BACON RESTAURANT

Bar Brutus in Montreal, Canada, is the country's first all-bacon fixed restaurant with dishes like bacon sushi (chicken, omelette, mayo and mustard rolls wrapped in... bacon), bacon doughnuts and the Kevin Bacon burger. The Jäegerpoutine (a bacon variation on Canada's national dish but with Jäegermeister gravy) sounds the pig... er, pick of the bunch.

DIY PERFECT BACON BOWL

Have a look on Amazon and you can find this kit, which will help you cook your bacon into a ready-made bowl you can then put far inferior food into. Or you can use it as a mull bowl — it's up to you. It's a great idea that could be developed a hell of a lot more. We're talking bacon plates, bacon shot glasses, bacon champagne flutes — even bacon dump trucks!

BACON CHOCOLATE

Anything with chocolate, smoked bacon and smoked salt is going to light up the pleasure centres of your brain like a Las Vegas casino strip. That must be why US firm Vosges offers milk, dark and cinnamon & sugar bacon varieties. They also offer bacon caramel eggs, and other chocolate without bacon, though ordering that might be a bit piggy.

DEAD PIG LOTTO TICKETS

Punters in the US state of New Hampshire could buy $1 scratch'n'sniff lotto tickets in January reading "I heart bacon" — with the odds of bringing home the bacon (zing!) 1 in 4.12. Top prize was US$1000 and the ticket was by far the most popular type in the state. Hundreds of players also rashly submitted bacon poems, which ZOO is not reprinting due to them being shit.

SWINE AND DINE!

THE MASTER BACON BLASTER

It looks like something Spock would shoot a Klingon with in Star Trek, but it's actually a gun Danish pig farmers are using to make sure punters get perfect bacon. The NitFom gun shoots light particles into an oinker's skin — painlessly, of course — to measure iodine levels in the meat. If the iodine's just right, the bacon tastes better and can be sliced far more thinly.

NEXT STOP. THE BACON COFFIN

US fast-food terrorists Little Caesar unleashed this weapon of mass deliciousness. Called the "Bacon Wrapped Crust Deep! Deep! Dish Pizza", it's a pepperoni and (you guessed it) bacon pie wrapped in a whole metre of delicious pork product.

THE HOTTEST NEW WHEELS EVERY WEEK

Return of the shaggin' wagon!

Holden goes out with a bang by bringing back the legendary Sandman rootmobile

 The original Sandman panel van became iconic within months of its 1974 launch, quickly covered in stickers like “Don’t laugh, your daughter might be inside” and associated with surfers and unwanted teen pregnancies. Now Holden is bringing the legend back, but in a far more limited run of just 250 units split between utes and station wagons. They’re based on the SV6 and SS-V VF Holdens, which are a galaxy away from the original HQ/HJ/HX and HZs. There’s no true panno version — peeps will definitely see you rooting through the wagon’s windows — but the General is offering orange shag seat covers and carpets, both made from dead Muppets.

Four decades of love for the OG Sandman ute and van and still going strong

WHAT A BUNCH OF DOUCHEY WINNERS

Straya won the Cricket World Cup, and good on yaz. I got David Boon'd at home watching and then rejoiced like I had something to do with the win. They crushed Nieu Zulland so hard that tha Kiwis hivv decidud to guvv us the twenty fifteen Blidusloe Cup as will. Prutty suk, ey?

In all seriousness, the Kiwis went down hard, with Straya making pretty quick work of 'em, especially McCullum getting out for a duck. I don't wanna shit on the win, but the lip service a few of our boys gave the Kiwis while they were batting and the snarky verbal drubbing whenever they took a wicket was nothing short of cty.

Sticking the knife into other countries who sledge as good as they sludge is fine, but New Zealand and their speak-softly-and-carry-a-big-stick approach to the world shouldn't be shat on, even if they brought the wrong stick on the day. Daniel Vettori is a deadset legend and a true gent, and this was the last time he'd ever represent NZ. When his wicket fell the Aussies laid it on real thick, and that amount of mongrel was uncalled for. As New Zealand actor Russell Crowe said in Gladiator, "What we do in life echoes in eternity." That Sunday the only thing Australian cricketers made echo through eternity is the sledging equivalent of "I fked your mum". NZ: "Sadly, she passed away." Straya: "Oh, really? I thought she was just sleeping."

A sore loser is one thing, but a douchey winner is worse. A few blokes who fell out of women on the same land mass as us, done gone hit a ball with a bat a bit better than a few other blokes. It's not inventing renewable energy, solving world poverty or curing cancer. It's just cricket, and the way a few of our heroes acted on the day just wasn't cricket.

50 FUNNIEST MOMENTS IN AUSSIE SPORT

Nudity, huge amounts of alcohol, sex toys — nothing's off-limits!

WALLY LEWIS DOES SOME REFEREEING

When he was playing in the Brisbane premiership, the King stopped a try... with his voice! An opponent had made a clean break and couldn't be stopped, so Wally impersonated the ref's distinctive voice and yelled "Offside, number six!" The bloke dropped the ball in disgust. No try!

AFL STAR CHANGES HIS NAME TO "WHISKAS"

In 1999 Geelong Cats skipper Garry "Buddha" Hocking changed his name by deed poll to "Whiskas" to earn his club a stack of cash from the cat-food maker. Wonder if he'd have done it if the sponsor was a haemorrhoid cream. "Anusol Hocking" does have a good ring to it.

SYMONDS SMASHES STREAKER

Andrew Symonds once considered playing for the Brisbane Broncos, and based on what he did to a streaker at the Gabba in 2008, he would've gone well in the forwards. The all-rounder smashed the nudist so hard his balls are probably still somewhere up around his ribcage.

IF HAIRCUTS COULD KILL

Victorian Country League player Nathan van Someren was sent off by the umpire in May 2011. Did he king-hit someone?

Launch a headbutt? Pull a knife? Set someone on fire? Nah... he was bounced out for having a dangerous haircut (pictured).

NRL COMMENTATOR DROPS THE C-BOMB

Ray Warren's been an outstanding caller for rugby league for decades. But in the 2007 Origin series he got a bit excited and mixed up Karmichael Hunt's name: "Here is kt, bringing it back..." NSW fans thought it was just a generic term for any Queenslander.

CRASH PEST DUMMY

When a passing move went wrong at Winton in 1994, Tony Longhurst lost his shit with Paul Morris. Badly. So badly that he jumped out of his car, ran to Morris's and started punching him in the head through the open window. Um, Tony? He's wearing a helmet, mate.

BOONIE'S BEER RECORD REMAINS UNBEATEN

After England won the 2003 Rugby World Cup, centre Mike Tindall tried to beat Boonie's 52-can record on the flight back home. He got close to 50 before falling agonisingly short. Sucked in!

ROY & HG'S THE DREAM

"Flat bag", "crazy date" and "hello boys" — a few of the terms the comedy duo used to call men's gymnastics at the 2000 Games on TV. It's no wonder Olympic stars from many nations wanted to appear on their show.

AFL UMPIRE TAKES A SPECCY

July 10, 1999, will go down in Aussie Rules history as the day we saw the finest — and possibly only — mark made by an umpire. Peter Carey took a great grab in the first quarter of Freo vs the Saints.

CROWS STONE THE CATS

Adelaide Crows fans knew how to hit the management of Geelong where it hurts when they played a very empty Skilled Stadium before the Cats' grand final run, chanting: "They're here, they're there, they're fking everywhere! Empty seats! Empty seats!"

LET'S CELEBRATE... WITH A HEADBUTT!

When a Johnathan Thurston field goal got the Cowboys a last-minute win in a thriller a few years back, Matt Scott and Arana Taumata jumped for joy... and clashed heads with enough force to knock out the average bloke. A high five never hurt anyone, boys.

THE DILDOS AND DILDON'TS OF MAD MONDAY

When serial brain-farther Brendan Fevola rocked up outside a Melbourne bar in a pink nightie with a huge strap-on dildo in 2008, there were calls for the AFL to ban the festival of life-threatening alcohol abuse that is Mad Monday. Thankfully, they didn't listen.

JOCKEY'S FAKE PENIS DRUG TEST

Queensland hoop Jason Warrington was busted in 2007 for trying to give a sample of someone else's urine at a drug test using what deputy chief steward John Hackett called "a device". Which is a nice way of saying "a fake donger". Hope he made it worthwhile by at least using a big one.

WE SMASH THE YANKS LIKE GUITARS

Before the 2000 Olympics Gary Hall Jr of the unbeaten US 4x100m freestyle relay team was asked about the Aussies and said he and his mates would

"smash them like guitars". When we beat them in the final the local boys' reaction was almost as funny as the look on the Yanks' faces.

WEAR A CRASH HELMET, PRIME MINISTER!

Ah, Bob Hawke: a world champ at skolling beer, but not so good at playing the hook shot. The then-PM top-edged a ball into his glasses during a Prime Minister's XI vs Press Gallery match in 1984, but despite glass fragments having to be removed, would end up without permanent damage. Hawkey joked he expected a good run from the bowler's paper over the next few weeks of the election campaign.

HOW TO ARSE YOUR WAY TO GOLD

You don't make the speed skating final at the Olympics unless you're a top athlete — but the fact remains Stephen Bradbury won gold in 2002 because all the other blokes fell over. Go Straya!

AFL FANS ASK: WHO TURNED OUT THE LIGHTS?

Punters invaded the pitch at the Saints-Dons Rd 10 game in 1996 when the lights at Waverley failed for 25 minutes. "It fair dinkum is looking like the ocean at midnight," said a reporter.

BRONCO BASHES THE REF!

When a Broncos player accidentally KO'd the ref in a 2009 match against Souths, it was replayed more often than the JFK assassination. Tonie Carroll was the culprit.

DARIUS BOYD GIVES THE NRL'S GREATEST INTERVIEW — 2009

Q: Up against the Broncos, excited about facing your old mates?

A: Yeah, can't wait.

Q: That excited?

A: Yep.

Q: Did you watch them play last week?

A: No I didn't.

Q: What's the strategy going into the game?

A: We'll decide that on Wednesday, I suppose.

Q: Happy to score another try, it was a good one?

A: Yeah, it was good, eh.

Q: Second one of the season, it's taken a while, you must be keen to be coming into form at the right time of the season.

A: No it was good.

Q: What are your thoughts on the way your team is going at the moment Darius?

A: Um, yeah, it was pretty good, eh.

Q: Are you fair dinkum?

A: Yeah.

WILLIE MASON + MICROPHONE = HILARITY

Judging by his comments when he was mic'd up last year, NRL star Willie Mason should be wired for sound every game. "Fk, you need some front-rowers, you cats!" he said to the Dragons at a scrum. And it just got funnier from there. Use the Viewa feature on this page to have a look.

THE WORST KICKOFF IN NRL HISTORY

The Dogs kicked off to the Roosters in 2011. Mitchell Pearce took it, passed to Roosters prop Martin Kennedy... who tripped over in his own in-goal and got hit in the head by the ball.

PLUGGER'S PIG GETS A RUN ON THE SCG

A Swans fan helped a pig with "Plugga" written on it run onto the SCG at a 1993 game vs St Kilda. "I was livid when I saw that pig and I vowed to make the Swans pay," Tony Lockett wrote. Uh-oh...

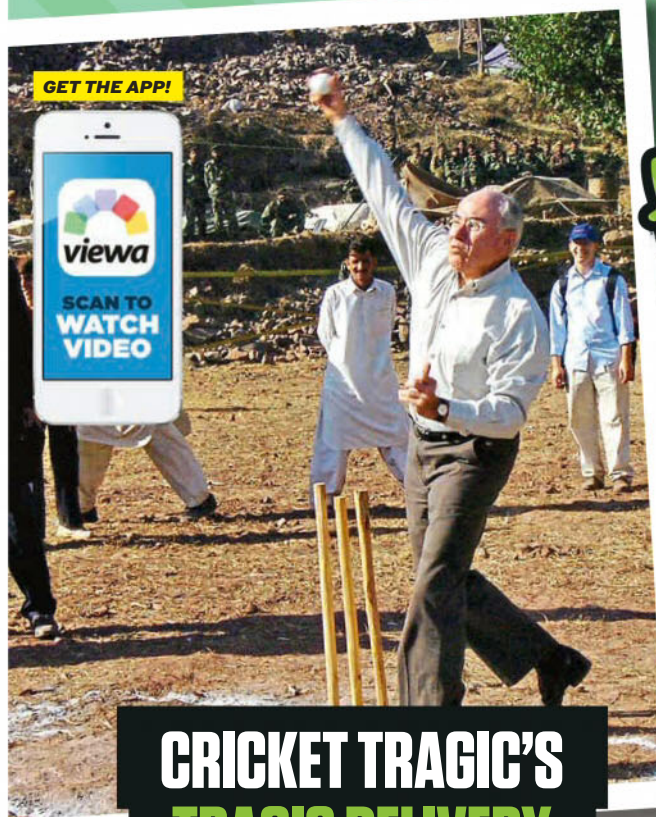

WARNEY TRIPS THE LIGHT FANTASTIC

Warney's infamous and hilarious "stump dance" after our 1997 Ashes triumph didn't just rub salt into the Poms' wounds — it injected it straight into their bloodstream. Best. Celebration. Ever.

THE PHANTOM SIREN CAN'T BE STOPPED

A St George NRL fan who could impersonate the siren wreaked havoc in the early 2000s. He'd often howl just before halftime, when the other team had the ball, so they'd stop playing, giving the Dragons another set. Genius.

CRICKET TRAGIC'S TRAGIC DELIVERY

For a man who loves cricket as much as Kanye loves himself, John Howard did a lot to bring the game into disrepute. Of three balls he bowled in Pakistan in 2005, one was wide and two dead. Stephen Hawking could've done better after 22 beers.

NRL PLAYER RAIDS TEAMMATE'S HOUSE FOR FUN

In 2002, League Week magazine revealed that the then Warriors star Nathan Wood had pranked teammate Kevin Campion by breaking into his house with a mask on, laying in wait and jumping out when he got home. He truly was the NRL's version of Johnny Knoxville.

STEVE HARMISON'S CRAPTACULAR FIRST BALL

The tension was thicker than Tony Abbott's skull in the first Ashes Test of 2006/07. England held the urn. Steve Harmison charged in to bowl the first ball at the Gabba, the nation held its breath and... it was so wide it went straight to second slip.

IT'S A NICE DAY FOR A... POWER FAILURE

There have been many entertainment fails at Aussie grand finals but none top Billy Idol's effort at the 2002 NRL decider. He came out on a hovercraft, hit the stage and... no power! Cue five minutes of awkwardness as they failed to fix everything. At least Billy got to blurt out "I love my footy!"

MICK O'LOUGHLIN: 1, WEST COAST FANS: 0

The Swans star copped plenty from Weagles fans in the clubs' 2006 qualifying final, but when he kicked the Bloods to victory by a single point he gave it all back — with interest. He got right in the face of Daniel Williams, who became the AFL's most famous fan for a while as a result.

50 FUNNIEST MOMENTS IN AUSSIE SPORT

THE SLEDGER SO GOOD THEY MADE A STATUE OF HIM

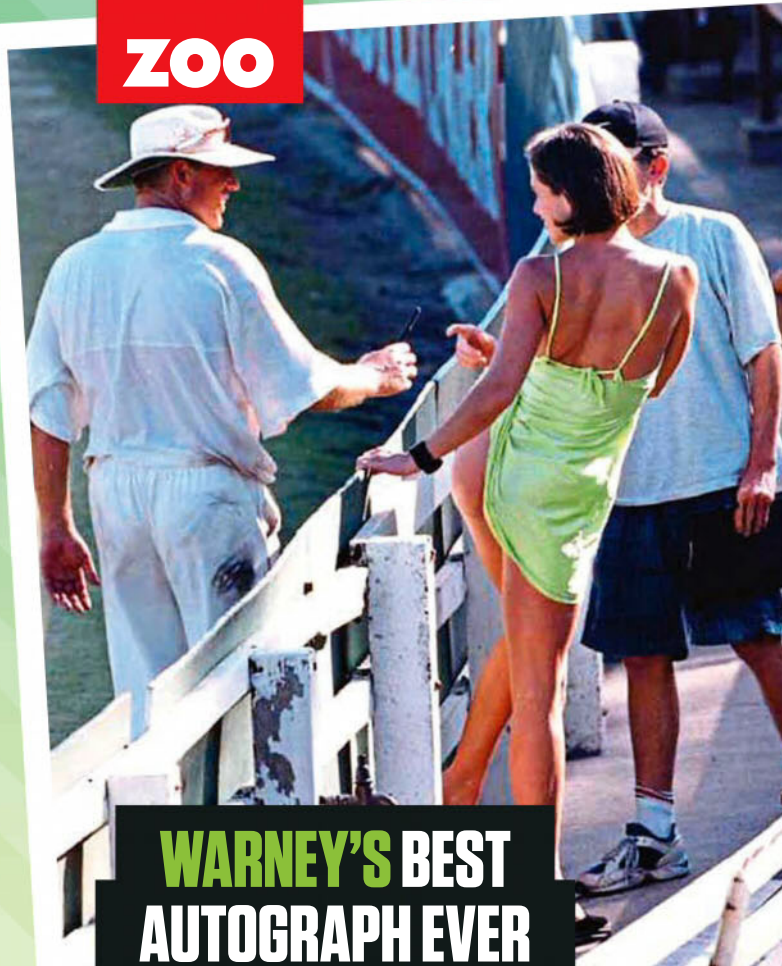

If you make it to the SCG, go to row two, bay 15, in the Victor Trumper Stand, where The Hill used to be. You'll find a statue of Stephen "Yabba" Gascoigne, who never played a Test but was famed for sledging Poms with gems like, "Send him down a piano, see if he can play that!"

DENNIS LILLEE TAKES HAVING A BAT TO THE NEXT LEVEL

The legendary quick made cricket history when he strode to the WACA crease in 1979 with an aluminium bat. After a ruckus, Aussie captain Greg Chappell made Lillee use the willow, and the big man threw his metal number 40 yards in disgust. Or in other words, he batted off.

WARNEY'S BEST AUTOGRAPH EVER

If we had a dollar for every autograph the Sheikh of Tweak had signed, we'd be richer than Rupert Murdoch and Bill Gates put together. But surely this example tops all the others by a factor of about 10 million. Not an opportunity to pass by.

THE UNVEILING OF THIS SIGN

We'll translate: "Who needs a large forward named Willie Mason when you have a Canberra Raiders fan who can sign a great tongue?"

great player in back-rower and captain Alan Tongue?" Aussie signwriting skill at its finest.

PAT RAFTER WINS A DAVIS CUP GAME WHILE PISSED

Australia had already won the 1997 quarter-final with the Czech Republic when Pat Rafter drained a few glasses in celebration. Probably a fair bit more than a few, actually: he admitted he was "still drunk" when he played — and beat — David Rikl in a dead rubber.

DANNY GREEN SMART-ARSES THE HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP

Boxing great James Toney outweighed Danny Green by about 45kg when they sparred in 2004. But Green went toe-to-toe with him after teasing Toney about missing sparring sessions. Green took huge shots, making Toney so pissed he said, "I'll shoot all y'all motherfkers!"

BEST & FAIREST WINNER IS A NO-SHOW!

Canterbury genius Ewan McGready won the 1991 Rothmans Medal as the league's best player. But the laid-back bloke decided not to attend the ceremony. Club officials had to drive like Fangio to pick him up and get him to the venue.

HAYDEN BALLANTYNE COPS ONE IN THE SHNUTS

Freo star Hayden Ballantyne's nuts must have looked like pikelets after their 2012 game against GWS. The ball had been booted but the boundary ump blew the whistle when it was in mid-air and Ballantyne took his eyes off it. It smashed his balls, giving new meaning to the term "screamer".

THE DAY THOMMO BROKE A POM'S DICK

The WACA, 1974. England's David Lloyd is facing Jeff Thomson, the world's fastest bowler. A delivery hits him in the box and... "it cracked open and what I had inside fired through before the box snapped shut again like a guillotine," said Lloyd. Altogether now, guys: NOOOOOOOO!

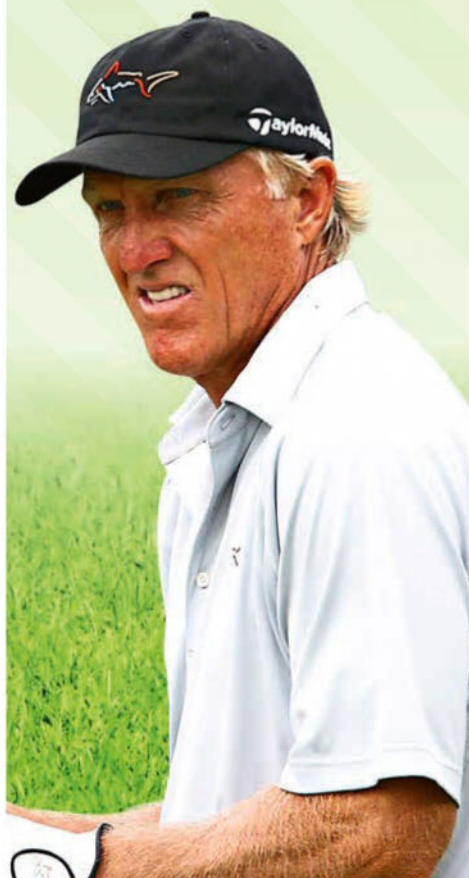

THE GREATEST CRICKET COMMENTARY EVER

Steve Waugh's on 98 with one ball remaining vs England, SCG, 2003. Commentator Jonathan Agnew says he should come back the next day to get his 100. Oz's Kerry O'Keefe replies: "Stuff the silver, we came for the gold! Poms would come back tomorrow. Aussies want it now, we're instant people. C'mon, Stephen!" Waugh must have heard that bit of excellence, because he punched the next ball straight to the boundary.

PROOF GREG NORMAN IS MENTAL

Anyone who's ever Googled "stupid quotes" will be happy to see that an Aussie sportsman came up with one of the stupidest ever. Over to you, Greg Norman. "I owe a lot to my parents, especially my mother and my father." And they say football players are dumb!

FEV WINS THE WORST & DRUNKEST MEDAL

Brendan Fevola's Footy Show Street Talk segment at the 2009 Brownlow was car accident TV: terrible, but you couldn't look away. He was the drunkest man in Australia that night after a 13-hour session which began with blackjack and drinks at 2pm. Check the Viewra video if you don't believe us...

THE FANATICS CHANNEL AEROSMITH

When the Aussies were up against it in the 2009 Ashes in the UK, the Fanatics supporters club helped out by sledging girlie Pom bowler Stuart Broad by changing the lyrics of Aerosmith's hit Dude Looks Like a Lady to "Broady! Broady! Dude looks like a lady!" Funny and factually correct!

"THAT'S NOT THE AUSSIE NATIONAL ANTHEM!"

When Aussie Alan Jones won the 1977 Austrian GP, it was such a shock that no-one had the Aussie anthem handy. "So a drunk played Happy Birthday on a trumpet," the former F1 world champ remembered. Could've been worse. At least they didn't play a Rolf Harris song.

HOW TO MAKE AN AFL TACKLE ARSE-BACKWARDS

Ben Stratton's laid some vital tackles for Hawthorn, but his best hit came vs Melbourne last year, when he got turned around by Jack Viney but managed to back into him, wrap him up and basically tackle him with his arse!

AUSSIE RULES TEAM LINES UP BROTHEL BUCKS

Footballers have been known to use brothels from time to time, so it seemed like a perfect match when St Kilda City Football Club agreed to a sponsorship with the California Club sex parlour in 2010. Sadly, after speaking with AFL Victoria, they pulled out. Of the deal, that is — not a hooker.

COPS PULL GUNS ON GEELONG STARS

In 2013 Cats players Billie Smedts and Josh Caddy donned balaclavas and rocked up at teammate Jackson Thurlow's house to scare the shit out of him. A neighbour reported an armed robbery to police, who drew guns on the pair. To quote Seinfeld, it's funny because no-one got shot.

WHAT DO YOU BUY A CRICKETER WITH A BROKEN JAW?

Aussie quick Geoff Lawson had his jaw smashed in five places by West Indian legend Curtly Ambrose in 1989. Merv Hughes, ever the great teammate, gave Geoff a present to brighten him up: a box of chewing gum.

SHANE HEAL TAKES ON THE DREAM TEAM

When the mighty USA played Oz in 1996, they hit a speed bump in the form of feisty point guard Shane Heal. In a legendary battle, he got under all-star Charles Barkley's skin so much the Yank mimicked shooting a gun at the little Aussie.

BETTER THAN WINNING THE ASHES?

Nothing funny happened in the Socceroos vs England match at Upton Park in 2003, which we won 3-1. The hilarious bit? It stopped Poms from answering the Aussie taunt "We shit on you at sport!" with the retort, "Not at football you don't!"

RUGBY'S RESIDENT STAND-UP COMIC

In a post-match interview Wallabies winger Nick Cummins gave us expressions like "sweating like a gypsy with a mortgage" and "the boys were on it like seagulls at a tip".

AKRAPOVIC FULL MOON

► The sexiest thing to come out of Slovenia since... well, forever, the Full Moon runs a 1.5-litre Knucklehead engine, hydraulic suspension that lets you park it upright without a kickstand, and bodywork that looks like it was made by someone who's on almost as many drugs as Amy Winehouse was. It's named for its front wheel, which is a huge 76cm in diameter. One problem: it can't go around a corner at anything above 15kmh 'cos there's no lean angle to be had. But really, who cares?

24 CHAINSAW MOTORS!

► It's called the Dolmette, it's made in Germany, and when you kick her over she sounds like a tree-hugger's worst nightmare. Mated to a Harley transmission, it all adds up to 1.9 litres of engine with 24 cylinders making 125kW. Ideal for the morning commute!

LIKE A CAT OUT OF HELL

► The X132 Hellcat Speedster, by US-based Confederate Motors is named after a WWII fighter plane, probably because it shits all over most Japanese machines. It's about 95 per cent engine, thanks to the fact it runs a stupidly big 2.16-litre, fuel-injected V-twin that cranks out 90kW and enough torque to pull John Goodman's socks on in the morning.

THE RONIN

► The Magpul custom shop bought 47 Buell 1125 bikes and gave them the full treatment as a tribute to the 47 masterless samurai who starred in a famous Japanese legend that Keanu Reeves wrecked with a shithouse movie. If Batman had've wrecked the Batpod bike in The Dark Knight, he would've sold it for scrap and got one of these as a replacement.

NOTHING BUT DONK

► Want a bike with a frame and wheels so anorexic that they make the engine look even bigger than Floyd Mayweather's bank account? The Moto Guzzi V50 is your best bet. If you can't turn heads on this thing you must be riding it past a school for the blind.

TRIUMPH ON A SEVERE DIET

► Yank mad scientist Jeff Arrington took a 1972 Triumph Tiger and changed it beyond all recognition. He wanted to make a custom that could've been built by Nikola Tesla, the genius inventor who revolutionised the way we use electricity and was so smart he made Edison look like a spaz. Mission accomplished, mate.

BABY GOT BACK

► It takes the Hamann Soltador 3.3 seconds to go from 0-100kmh, and 0.02 of a second to blow any petrolhead's mind.

Looking more aggro than Mike Tyson on a 12-day meth binge, she packs a tyre that makes her arse bigger than Nicki Minaj's.

DUCATI + CHOOK CHASER = SUZUCATI!

► Once upon a time this was a Ducati 999 superbike. Then the mental cases at Roland

Sands Design bolted on whatever was in the parts bin at the time, added dirt bike tyres, and bingo!

They had a Franken-cycle that goes off-road and is uglier than a hatful of arseholes... in a good way.

WHAT THE BLOODY HELL?

► Fred "Krugger" Bertrand won the AMD World Championship of custom bike building, and it's not hard to see why when you perve on his take on the BMW K1600. All hand-formed steel and one-of-a-kind bodywork, it runs a massive 21-inch wheel up back, with two petrol tanks and looks that put the light cycles in Tron to shame.

AMAZING WRAITH

► Confederate's R135 Wraith Combat appears to have a missing petrol tank, but to make up for that it's got a pair of front forks so thick and tough they could be used as pillars to lift Uluru off the ground. Only seven have been made available for sale in Australia, so they're rarer than St Kilda premierships.

BMW CONCEPT 90

► The original BMW R90S was a classic that hasn't aged well, just like Val Kilmer. But the Concept 90 took all its best bits and introduced modern gear to make a ride that's sexier than Kate Upton sucking on a lollipop.

NICE CIRCLE WORK

► Sitting on Rafik Kaissi's heavily worked custom Buell would be about as comfortable as having a Dettol enema, but by Christ it does a better job of catching the eye than Miley Cyrus streaking at the Boxing Day Test. Old mate would've had to have taken David Boon's bodyweight in acid to come up with this design.

'day, Madison. It's been a fair while since you were last in the magazine — July 2013. What have you been up to?

A lot, actually! Building a house, plus I got more tattoos. I've also been working and I've had a couple of holidays.

Half your luck. Tell us about your new ink work...

I got my chest piece filled in and my left forearm filled, and a portrait of Marilyn Manson on my back.

Aw yeah, Marilyn — the guy who played Kevin's mate on The Wonder Years. Back in your last appearance you told us you're a natural exhibitionist and you'd get your boobs out anywhere. We want to test that, so would you — or have you — got the girls out in the following places...

A police station?
Yes, but not on purpose!
A job interview?
Yes!
In a posh restaurant?
Yes!
In a church?
Not yet...

That window over the back of Kocie and Sam on Sunrise where you can see all the people walking by on the street?

No, but fk yes I would [laughs]! Kocie... I think he's rather sexy with that 'do of his.
You must be the only person in Australia who reckons that. Who do you think would be better in bed: a first-grade footballer, a hardcore bogan, a hipster, or Shane Warne? And why?

Not a footballer... Been there [laughs] — no good! I would say Shane Warne, probably, because he bowls like a team player. And what girl doesn't want a team player in her bed?!

You've previously said you like other chicks, and not just as friends. What sort of girl do you go for?

I go for pretty girls, sexy girls, girls with a short skirt and a loooooooooong jacket! [Laughs]

Would you trust a guy who doesn't drink beer?

No. No way.

Some of the models we've interviewed in the past have made New Year's resolutions about sex.

Have you ever done that?

And how did it go?

I don't do resolutions. I think it's a poor excuse for dreaming about what you want to do instead of just doing it!

Can you name one thing you want to try in bed, but you haven't got around to it yet?

Having sex with two girls [laughs]. I think like a bloke!

A full-page photograph of Madison Rhys. She is a woman with long, straight blonde hair and blue eyes, looking directly at the camera. She is wearing a black fishnet bodysuit with thin straps. Her arms and legs are heavily tattooed. On her right arm, there is a large tattoo of a woman's face and a large rose. On her left arm, there is a tattoo of a hand holding a heart. On her right leg, there is a tattoo of a crown and the words "Glorious Lingerie Bridal". On her left leg, there is a tattoo of a heart. NEXT: GO INSIDE OZ'S SHITBOX RALLY

Chook chasers go bonkers in Honkers!

X-Fighters jam makes crowd forget communist oppression for a bit

Hard as it is to believe, the global juggernaut of extreme risk-taking that is the Red Bull X-Fighters tour had never been to Hong Kong before they lobbed there just over a week ago. So when professional gravity-defiers like Marcus Dubois, Gilles De Jong and Nick Franklin started smashing their dirt bikes through the air at the city's Central Harbourfront, just about every Hong Kong citizen who hadn't been put into gulag by the city's communist overlords rocked up. And what did the crowd chant as the boys landed backflips galore? Nothing. There's no freedom of speech over there, you know.

I have absolutely no idea how to land this

KICKING GOALS IN RED CHINA

4000 kays in a SHITBOX!

After his parents died of cancer, James Freeman started the Shitbox Rally to fight the mongrel disease

Why'd you choose to do a rally in cars that can't cost more than $1000 through some of the toughest terrain in Australia?

I'd been overseas for a long time and I wanted to rediscover Australia. The best way to see things is to get in a car and drive. Then you're up close with the small towns and country pubs; the things you miss when you're flying over the top.

But why in shitboxes?

I wanted it to be a challenge but with something a bit ridiculous about it, and that was driving these roads in a shitbox. We disappear onto outback roads where you'd question taking them on in a four-wheel drive... doing it in a $1000 car immediately makes people laugh.

Are you allowed to trick them up at all?

No, we're pretty militant about the $1000 limit and we're pretty good at telling which are shitboxes and which aren't. If you buy a car for $500, you have $500 to spend on it, but if you buy one for $1000 that's it.

Does it amaze you what some of these shitboxes are capable of?

We've travelled some terrain that is really, really rough — a 4WD would struggle on it — and we're in two-wheel drive cars. None of them have been lifted or have modified suspension, they're just bog-standard cars and most of them get through to the finish line. It's awesome, actually.

How many cars don't make it through the rally?

About nine per cent. But you're missing the point if you come on the rally and you don't have any problems with your car. Then you're just going on a long drive, as opposed to a challenge where you should be quite from Anchorman, with the dish on the top and the old-school styling. They kept it up the entire rally, a guy and girl, dressed in their '70s outfits with their Channel 7 microphones.

How long is each rally?

We change the route every year. Last year was our longest rally at 4200km. That's when you realise how enormous this country is.

"I WANTED IT TO BE A CHALLENGE BUT WITH SOMETHING RIDICULOUS" concerned about whether you make it or not.

What's the shittiest shitbox you've seen during the six years of the rally?

We had one team that by the time they actually started the rally in 2011, they were already onto their third car.

Which have been the most memorable teams when it comes to theming cars?

We've had a DeLorean before and last year we had the car from Monsters, Inc., the little six-wheeled yellow thing. We get plenty of [Mad Max] Interceptors. One year we had a team who had a big old Bedford van done up like the Channel 7 news vehicle

How's the race's social side?

On different nights we'll turn up in the middle of nowhere and there's usually a pub. You might not know anybody in there but you already do because everyone is doing the rally with you. It's very easy to form friendships and that's something that lasts beyond the rally with people you might normally never come across. Because cancer is such a prevalent disease, there are so many different people who are affected by it.

ACTION/
THRILLER

THE GUNMAN

[CTC]

8/10

THE GIST: Eight years after carrying out an assassination, ex-soldier Jim Terrier (a buff Sean Penn) has to come out of hiding and go on the offensive when the bigwigs who ordered the kill want anyone involved dead. ZOO SAYS: This has been copping a lot of flak in the media, which is unfair, 'cos it's actually a smart, mature and emotionally charged effort. Penn's gritty acting, killer cameos from Ray Winstone, Idris Elba and Javier Bardem, plus restrained directing from Pierre Morel (Taken) make this a refreshing change from the countless aging-action-hero Liam Neeson movies.

ACTION/
COMEDY

PAUL BLART: MALL COP 2

[PG]

1/10

THE GIST: Paul Blart (Kevin James) has been busting his fat-arse as a mall security guard for six years, so he goes on vacation to Las Vegas with his daughter before she heads off to college. But when a casino's security gets tested to the limit, Blart has to dust off his Segway and help out. ZOO SAYS: The sequel to one of the worst movies ever made is somehow shittier than the original. If you laugh once, please see a GP immediately.

COMEDY/
DRAMA

WHILE WE WERE YOUNG

[M]

6/10

THE GIST: Josh (Ben Stiller) and Cornelia (Naomi Watts) are a mid-forties couple without kids. Their boring lives get energised and turned upside down thanks to a "chance" meeting with a hipster couple, Jamie (Adam Driver) and Darby (Amanda Seyfried). ZOO SAYS: Noel Boasbaum movies are too weird and arty for us, but this one gets points for taking the piss out of hipsters.

BLU-RAY

CRIME DRAMA

THE DROP

[MA15+]

7/10

THE GIST: Based on a Dennis Lehane (Mystic River, Shutter Island) short story, The Drop tells the tale of lonely, seemingly slow bartender Bob (Tom Hardy). He works with Marv (James Gandolfini) in a joint that's a drop for money-laundering mobsters. Bob strikes up a relationship with a hot-but-damaged neighbour (Noomi Rapace) after rescuing her dog. Shit hits the fan when a robbery opens up a can of worms. ZOO SAYS: The three lead actors (especially the late Gandolfini) help make this slow, tense and dreary drama above-average.

FIGHTING

MORTAL KOMBAT X

PS4, XBI, PS3, XB360, PC

9/10

THE GIST: Thanks to Straya's R18+ rating, this ultra-bloody game passed the ratings test first try! Smash opponents into dangerous environments, or land sickening X-ray vision combos. Each fighter has three styles to use in several kool modes.

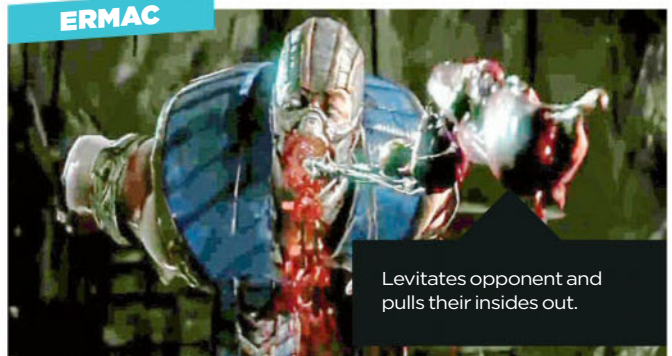

ZOO SAYS: There's more gore than an '80s horror flick, but that's only a small part of a killer fighting game that stands out for its rad roster, superb fighting mechanics and great story mode. We had hours of wicked fun, but it's not for the squeamish.

RACING

RIDE

PS4, XBI, PS3, XB360, PC

7/10

THE GIST: It's hardcore motorcycle racing for you super-serious fans of burning rubber on two wheels. There are over 100 bikes from legit manufacturers — ranging from Superbikes to Supersports, Naked and Historical categories — that can be raced on city and country tracks.

ZOO SAYS: Most of these racing sims are a snorefest for those who can't be arsed dealing with the ins and outs of motorcycle mechanics, but while this is a racing enthusiast's wet dream, it's also a light charmer for noobs. The menus and tutorial are user-friendly, but the mechanics are deep, with balance, weight distribution and detailed vehicle and rider customisation. It could definitely use more weapons, gambling and biker babes, but does well without 'em.

ROCK

ALABAMA SHAKES

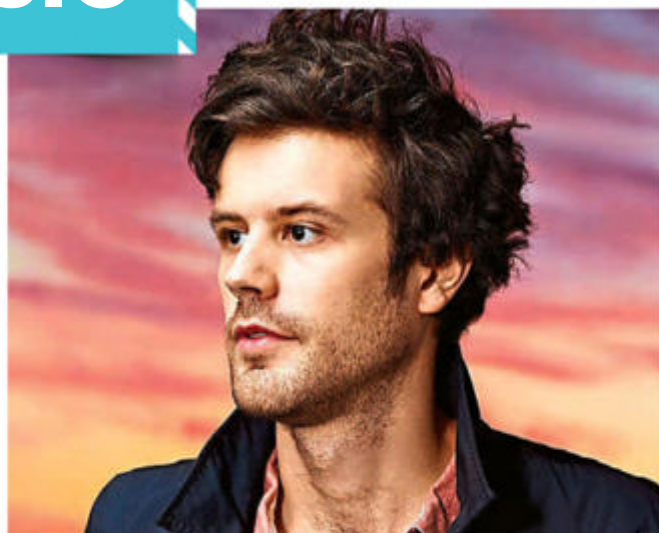

SOUND & COLOUR

8/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Fronted by big-lunged soul singer/guitarist Brittany Howard, this Grammy-nominated four-piece from Alabama have more style and swagger than all of Great Britain combined. Their follow-up to 2012's hugely successful debut sees them throwing some psych, garage and even space rock into the mix on Gemini.

ZOO SAYS: Howard is a powerhouse performer, belting out huge choruses or crooning her heart out on tracks like Miss You. The variety works a treat.

ELECTRO POP

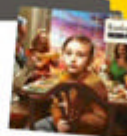

PASSION PIT

KINDRED

6/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Many feared Passion Pit main man Michael Angelakos's bipolar might've killed the band, but after several tour cancellations and a three-year absence, the "indietronica" act's third album sees him in good spirits. In fact, he's bouncing off the walls. Whatever meds he's on, we want some.

ZOO SAYS: This fluffy festival music isn't our cup of tea, but upbeat songs like Lifted Up (1985) and All I Want will put you in a better mood than a gyno whose next appointment is one Miss Margot Robbie.

ELECTRONIC

SQUAREPUSHER

DAMOGEN FURIES

6/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Tom Jenkinson (aka Squarepusher) made these songs in one take using software he built himself. The result is a brutal electro assault on your ears.

ZOO SAYS: Gives Aphex Twin a run for his money in terms of creativity. Bit hard on your holes, though.

INDIE/JAZZ/
ELECTRO

ELLIOT MOSS

HIGHSPEEDS

8/10

SOUNDS LIKE: A mix of electro, jazz and rock elements that'll appeal to fans of Bon Iver, James Blake and Chet Faker.

ZOO SAYS: Just 21 years old, this New Yorker is one talented mof. Definitely one to watch. Don't be surprised if this debut makes it big.

MUKBANG

Hundreds of South Koreans stuff their faces while broadcasting online — and get paid for doing it

1 Just as millions click on sites like Twitch and PewDiePew's YouTube channel to watch gamers in action, South Koreans are watching strangers binge-eat online — and giving them money

2 Mukbang is a mash-up of the Korean words for “eating” and “broadcasting”, with 3000 broadcast jockeys

(BJs) ordering vats of takeout or cooking their own recipes

3 The webcast platform, Afreeca TV, lets them interact with their fans as they eat, who send them 10c “star balloons” while they slurp down noodles or chomp fried chook. BJ The Diva — who can eat 3kg of beef in a four-hour show — was making $11k/month from fans, but spending $4k/month on food

4 BJs like Odessju, Umma, Sof and Bimprika have racked up hundreds of millions of views. Such is their celebrity, some had to move after fans found their home addresses

5 Different reasons for the phenomenon include the taboo factor — Koreans love food but frown on obesity — and more people living alone in a country where food is a communal activity (the Korean for family means “those who eat together”)

6 Mukbang has spread into the Korean mainstream since its 2009 beginnings, with variety show Happy Together and comedy-drama Let's Eat based on social eating. There's no Aussie version yet, but we bet it'd involve Tassie-size chicken parma

+ A UK poll found half of all married men found their mother-in-law attractive, with one in six saying she's hotter than his missus

+ The semi-nomadic Moken people of southeast Asia have evolved so they can see clearly underwater, diving for food as deep as 23m without scuba gear or masks

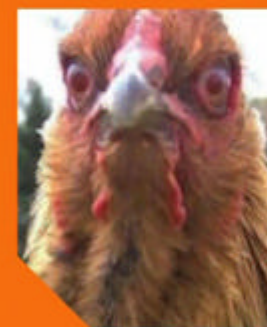

+ Dr. Dre's Beats by Dre headphones cost about $17 each to make, despite costing up to $540 in stores

+ Dinosaurs only appear in Jurassic Park for 15 of its 127 minutes

+ More Picasso's paintings have been stolen than those of any other artist — 1147 were listed in 2012

+ There's a medically diagnosed phenomenon known as “phantom vibration syndrome”, referring to the false sensation that a mobile phone is ringing or vibrating in someone's pocket

+ The chickens at KFC live for just 35 days before they're slaughtered, says the BBC
